What Miss Sommerfeld Says.

Miss Rose Sommerfeld, the superintendent of the Clara de Hirsch Home, at No. 225 East Sixty-third street, sees the need of such a temporary home for refined women.

"We have more applicants each week than we can provide for. You see, this is a permanent home, where girls are boarded at $3 a week. We have a long waiting list of girls who are hoping to be admitted as soon as vacancles are made. Unless something unusual happens we never have more than three beds to give to girls who ask to be taken in over night. Our regulations here are strict, but if I can possibly help it, I never turn any one away. When there are no patients in the infirmary I use that for the emergency cases, and if some sick girls have been transferred there I give their rooms to girls who apply,

"I'm constantly worrying about cases that I've been obliged to refuse. The difficulty is that the Clara de Hirsch isn't intended for women who want temporary lodging, and it is only by planning and changing about, and making some of our own girls 'double up' that I can let some outsiders in. any more institutions for of new applicants at such week, and all cannot be their, and the refined girl has
